In Bob Colacello's Out, a new book from Edition 7L, the celebrated editor presents a selection of photos he shot for Interview magazine in the '70s and '80s

"Xavier Arroyuelo, Bianca Jagger, Loulou Falaise and unidentified woman who could be wife of a rich German who lived on Park Ave."

"Jack Nicholson and Anjelica Huston were still very much in love at Marisa Berenson's wedding."

The intention was to have the pictures give you the feeling of being at the party. That's why some are at skewed angles, or there's half a head or a hand in the corner of the frame. They're not the kind of shots you get today with people standing there with their drink smiling into the camera. It was before the paparazzi industry changed the nature of those pictures, when they were still spontaneous and you could catch a moment. What I was doing was much more candid than you would see today."—Bob Colacello

"Calvin Klein pays his respects to Diana Vreeland at her 10th annual Costume Institute gala, which celebrated the opening of her exhibition 'The Eighteenth Century Woman.'"

"Marina Schiano, Richard Gere—not long after American Gigolo made him a star—and Andy at a 1980 party at Diane Von Furstenberg's Fifth Avenue apartment."

"Mick Jagger and Jerry Hall with an unknown bearded man at the Red Ball in Paris, June 1980. Mick was the only man not wearing a tuxedo, but his jacket was red leather."
